The directors can be appointed for a period of no longer than three financial periods, their term of office expires on the date set for the shareholders' meeting to approve the financial statements of the last financial year of their term of office and may be re-elected.

Holding the position of director is subject to the possession of the requirements of honour, professionalism and independence dictated by the provisions to which the Company must comply, also with reference to those envisaged by the codes of conduct drawn up by the company which manages the regulated markets.

If one or more directors should leave the Board during the year then the others shall replace them with resolution approved by the Board of Statutory Auditors, providing that the majority consists of directors appointed by the Shareholders' Meeting. Directors appointed in this way remain in office until the following Shareholders' Meeting.

The Shareholders' Meeting may change the number of Board members during the lifetime of the Board, within the numerical limits indicated in this article; if the Shareholders' Meeting increases the number, the new Board members are appointed according to the provisions contained in this article. The term of the members so appointed ceases at the same time as that of the members already appointed.

The members are appointed by the Shareholders' Meeting on the basis of lists in which the candidates are listed in numerical order.

The right to present such lists is held by the Board of Directors and Shareholders who individually or with other shareholders represent at least 2% of the voting shares for the ordinary shareholders' meeting.

Each shareholder may present individually or with other shareholders one list only and every candidate may appear in one list only, or he/she will be ineligible.

The elections of the Board members proceed as follows:

- a) Seven tenths of the members are taken from the list which obtains the most votes, in the numerical order they were listed, with numbers which are not whole rounded down;
- b) the other members are taken from the other lists; to this end, the votes obtained from these lists are subsequently divided by 1, 2 or 3 according to the number of members to be appointed. The quotients thus obtained are progressively assigned to the candidates on these lists, according to the order respectively envisaged. The quotients assigned in this way are then set out in descending order. Those with the highest quotients are accordingly appointed. In the event of candidates having the same quotient, the candidate is appointed from a list which has so far not had any members appointed or which has had the lowest number of members appointed. If this is the first member to be appointed with this method and so no lists have yet supplied a member or if the lists have all contributed the same number of members, the candidate will be appointed from the list which has received the most votes. In the case of votes cast being the same and the quotient assigned to the candidates also being the same, the Shareholders' Meeting will vote again and the member obtaining the highest number of votes will be appointed.
